by inmates of the poorhouse, some of them violently and dangerously insane. There are also fifty-one protested ballots in sealed bags, nearly all of them Republican, not counted on account of trifling informalities. These ballots the Republicans will ask to have counted.

Neither will the Republicans lose sight of the criminal phase of the case. There is Bot a shadow of doubt that mutilations and forgeries of tally sheets as flagrant as those which sent two prominent Indianapolis Democrats to the State's prison a few years ago were committed, and no effort will be spared to secure the indictment and conviction of the guilty parties. Yesterday afternoon a meeting of the prominent Republicans of the county was held and an organization was formed to collect evidence to be used in the cortest cases and to lay before the grand jury.

The Democrats also are preparing to make a desperate fight. When it was developed that Treasurer James Armstrong and his two sons, "Cal" and "Mont," had stolen the county blind, the impression got abroad and has never been dissipated that the affairs of the county were rotten to the core. In the campaign that has just closed the and of the Republicans, "Open the books!" attracted the support of many Demcerats who wanted to see the courthouse purged of the gang. There is reason to believe that the letting of daylight in on the methods that have been pursued in this county for several years would reveal facts that would offer inducements to sundry Democratic leaders to imigrate to more congenial climes. The bitterness with which the Democrats are fighting against turning over the affairs to the Republicans justifies the belief that the men making the fight are making it not for the offices, but for their liberty.

INDIANA DEATHS. Col. C. S. Ellis, an Old Wabash County Physician.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WABASH, Ind., Nov. 22.-Dr. C. S. Ellis one of the best-known citizens in Wabash county and widely known throughout the State, died at 5:20 o'clock this evening o heart fallure. He was taken sick two weeks ago with lung fever and was thought to be improving when his disease took a fatal turn, and in twenty minutes he was dead. He was seventy years old and has been a practicing physician for forty-five years. At the outbreak of the war he en-listed as a private soldier and was mustered out of the service as a lleutenant colonel at the close of the war. He served two terms as treasurer of Wabash county. His funeral will be held Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the G. A. R.

High Pressure Gas Sets on Fire Number of Shelbyville Houses. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Nov. 22 .- For several days the regulators of the Citizens' Natural Gas Company have been acting badly. Yesterday men were at work cleaning and putting the valves in proper shape for the winter. About midnight last night one of the valves in the North Harrisonstreet regulator stuck and allowed the gas from the high pressure line to enter the low re pipes from which the city is suppiled. As a consequence two houses in op-posite ends of town were entirely destroyed and several others badly damaged. The alarm of fire called the people from their beds and prevented a most serious conflagration. There was a rumor that some one had tampered with the regulator during the night, but that could not be subtlated. Several floors in other resi ces were so badly burned that the stoves Shot a Man for a Deer. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

FARMLAND, Ind., Nov. 22.-Uriah Garringer, a farmer residing four miles north of town, in company with several comrades from Ridgeville, was out in Michigan hunting deer last week. On last Friday he returned home, and on his arrival told his wife that he had accidentally shot a man by the name of John Smalley, whose home is in Petoskey. Garringer says there were several hunters camping near Clarion, Mich., seven miles from Petoskey, and that on Wednesday morning he was out track-ing a deer, and after following the trail for several hours came to some thick bushes, and, seeing a dark object and thinking it the deer, pulled up and fired. At that in-stant the man in the bushes screamed out, "My God, you have killed me." When Garringer got to the man he was still alive, and proved to be John Smalley, of Petos-key, who had been boarding at the same camp. The ball struck him in the hips and ed through the lower part of the kid-

Miss Battey Arrested.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Nov. 22.-Miss Delia Battey, of Christian avenue, Indianapolis, was arrested in this city this morning on the charge of being the person who made the murderous attack on Minnie Crull in the vicinity of the Presbyterian Church last night. Miss Battey asserts her innocence and claims that she was at Indanapolis at the time of the assault. Miss Crull, the victim, was so badly injured about the face by the nitric acid thrown on her that she could not appear in court to-day and the preliminary examination was continued to Dec. 3. In the meantime the accused is she came to No. Miss Battey claims she came to Nobles-ville on the midnight train last night after spending the day at Indianapolis.

Dr. Canbal Arrested.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. DANVILLE, Ind., Nov. 22,-Sheriff John Newlon arrived here this evening having in charge Dr. W. B. Canbal, whom he arrested in Pensacola, Fla. Dr. Canbal formerly lived at Sidell, this county, where he was a prominent merchant and the leading physician. Becoming financially embarrassed he fled to Mexico. The sureties on several of his notes then declared their signatures were forgeries. Indictments were found against the Doctor for forgery and it was under this charge that he was ar-rested. Many believe the signatures to be genuine and interesting developments are expected. The Doctor gave bail to the amount of $4,500 and left this evening for Sidell.

Murder in Whitley County.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. COLUMBIA CITY, Ind., Nov. 22.-Larwill, eight miles west of Columbia City, in Whitley county, was all excitement this morning over the murder of John Worken, aged twenty-two, by George Cady, aged twenty. The boys were friends, but last night drank freely and got into a friendly scuffle which lead to angry blows, Cady striking Worken over the temple with a beer bottle, inflicting an injury from which he died in a few hours after the tragedy occurred. Cady took his gun and wen hunting this morning, and as yet has not been arrested. Cady is of a good family.

Dead Under a Log.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. BRAZIL, Ind., Nov. 22.-Michael Johns, well-to-do farmer residing east of this city, was found this afternoon mashed to death under a large saw log in the woods near his home. Mr. Johns went early in the morning to bring the logs to market, and as he did not return for dinner, his family made a search. His body was cold, and it is thought he was killed early this morning. The team was standing near by unable to move the wagon, as the wheels were blocked by the log that mashed Mr. Johns.

Fire in a Wabash Theater. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WABASH, Ind., Nov. 22.-There came near being a panic at Harter's Opera House this evening. The house was crowded, the audience being principally women and children to witness a home talent show. A fire started among the scenery and some one in the audience gave the alarm. Women and children screamed and rushed for the door, and a panic was averted only by the pres-ence of mind of a couple of policemen who were in the audience.

Two Suits for Slander.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. VINCENNES, Ind., Nov. 22.-Last July the mill of Jordan & Lane, at Decker, tais county, was burned. It was supposed to have been set on fire, and suits have been filed here for damages for alleged slander by Mrs. Laura Jordan, of Decker, against S. A. Jordan and W. S. Lane, each in separate cases. Mrs. Jordan alleges that the defendants accused her with burning their mill. She claims $10,000 in each case.

WHERE IS MRS. HARRIS? The Woman in the Lumber Swindle

Case Cannot Be Found.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 22.-All efforts to lo cate Mrs. John Harris, who is implicated in the bogus Pennsylvania Land and Lumber Company, as told in a dispatch from Toledo last night, have proved futile. The police can find no such person and the City Directory does not contain the name of the woman who is said to have been poisoned by her fellow-conspirators. Charles H. Delaney, brother of W. E. Delaney, who is also supposed to have been connected with the great lumber swindle, to-day said: "This Mr. Gales is, along with Turner, the man who was responsible for kidnaping my brother, and is one of my brother's persecutors. The Mrs. John Harris referred to, and all the other defendants, except Mrs. Berst, I do not know and never heard of. My brother was not in Toledo lately, and was only an employe of the Pennsylvania Land and Lumber Company. He held the position of secretary and lost some salary when Packer, the president, left with the funds. If Gates wanted to find my brother he could have gotten him in Pittsburg all summer, for Gates and Turner both knew he was here in business. J. P. No Whites Left on the Islands Near New Guinea-Hawaiian Royalists Plotting to Restore "Lil."

LONDON, Nov. 22.-Australian mail advices are to the effect that the Kanahas on all the islands near New Guinea are in revolt. Scores of European settlers have been murdered. The steamer Three Cheers, of Sydney, called at the Admiralty islands and found that the people at trading posts and a trading schooner's crew had been burned. Not a single white man was visible. The natives fled to the hills on the approach of the steamer. The captain landed and found the remains of a recent cannibal feast. All the whites undoubtedly met with a horrible death. At New Ireland and other islands similar massacres are reported. It is supposed that the natives looted liquor stores, and becoming inflamed with the spoils, massacred the whites.

ROYALISTS STILL ACTIVE.

Plotting to Restore the Discarded Ex-

Queen Liliuokalina. SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.-Advices from Honolulu dated the 12th inst. have been received per steamer Mariposa, which arrived here to-day. The correspondent says: "That the government is still slightly in fear of the royalist uprising has been evident during the last week. All the guards in the suburbs have been doubled and a close watch has been kept on all suspected persons. The cause of this sudden activity is alleged to be the discovery of a plot to restore the ex-Queen. The restoring party was supposed to be led by a San Francisco newspaper man who, for a long time after his arrival here, soon after the recent revolution, was an active supporter of the new government. His house has been closely watched for weeks past and, some days before the departure of the steamer Australia, last Saturday, he was told by Attorney-general Smith that it would be much better for him to take that steamer than to remain here. He did so, but the government has not relaxed its watchfulness on account of his departure.
One of the most prominent and richest royalists in the city said a few evenings ago: "People who think our cause is dead will be treated to a surprise in the near future which will make them open their We have made many attempts to arouse the royalists to a sense of their wrongs, but so far we have failed. This time, however, I think we have succeeded and will accomplish our end. Whether we will succeed or not is difficult to say, but if we did not think we would we would not attempt a revolution." It is known that a considerable number of guns and ammunition have been secretly brought here during the last few months and the royalists evidently intend to make use of them. No uneasiness is felt by the government party, however, which seems per-fectly well satisfied that it can hold its The newspaper man mentioned in

A few months ago he and a young newspaper woman, whose home is in Santa Cruz, returned to Honelulu. Concerning Wetmore's escapades two stories are heard here. One is that Wetmore conspired with the royalists, as told in the Honolulu correspondence. Another is that he ingratiated himself with the royalists, learned their secrets and exposed their whole plot to the government, after which the government officers went through the process of deporting him as a ruse to shield and conceal the real nature of his relations with the government. Wetmore is now in San Francisco.

Situation in Samoa. APIA, Samoa, Nov. 22.-While there have been no recent native outbreaks a state o political unrest continues without any pros pect of termination. The native rebels are so far from subdued that many close observers believe King Malietoa's govern-ment is doomed. The belief is becoming more general, too, that certain influential Germans are secretly aiding the rebel party with a view of placing it in power, thus rendering German annexation or German protectorate easy of accomplishment. The German war ship Buzzard and the English cruiser Curacoa are still here.

PREACHING A HOLY WAR.

Rulers of Madagascar Inciting Their People Against the French. MARSEILLES, Nov. 22.-Mail advices that have reached here from Madagascar show that the arrival at Antananarivo of W. L. Myre De Vilers, the special envoy t present the demands of France to the Malagassy government was marked by the outbreak of robberies and incendiary fires. The government made no effort to repress the disorder. Two agents of the firm of Rebut & Sarrante, on the west coast of Madagascar, have been murdered by natives with assegais, and their quarters sacked. Prince Rakotemana, the Princess and other rela tives of the Queen are preaching a holy war. Scenes in Quaking Italy.

ROME, Nov. 22.-Signor Galli, the royal commissioner appointed to visit the districts affected by the earthquakes, has visited Reggio, capital of the province of Reggio di Calabria, and reports that he found in the city only twenty houses that entirely escaped damage. Another sharp earthquake was felt in Reggio to-day. The interiors of whole rows of houses in a space three hundred yards long were wrecked. Crowds of homeless women and children are wandering about their ruined dwellings, wringing their hands and weeping. The persons injured by falling ceilings and otherwise are being attended to in the open square.

News from Peary.

LONDON, Nov. 21 .- A dispatch to the Times, from Dundee, says that a whaling vessel that has arrived at that port brought a letter from Lieutenant Peary, the American Greenland explorer, dated Cape York, May 29. The letter confirms the previous accounts of the Peary expedition. Lieutenant Peary expressed the hope that other ships would touch at Cape York before winter set in.

In conclusion Father Ducey says:

shall be greatly pleased if your Excellency will inform me under what canonical rules you forbid my presence at any further sessions of the Lexow committee.' Much speculation will be caused by the suggestion at the end of the rector's letter as to the existence of "manuscript evidence." All efforts to persuade Father Ducey to explain his meaning on this point

The Origin of Many Popular American Slang Phrases. Few things have so short a life as street sayings. The cry in great favor of boys of all ages some years ago, of "Whoa Emma!" went out as soon as it appeared. Later the current street phrase took the form of "All very fine and large," then old and young were invited to "Arsk a policeman," while "Git yer 'air cut!" and "He's the man that broke the bank at Monta Carle" were the feverite expressions. Monte Carlo" were the favorite expressions Many street sayings have their origin in a music hall song. Thus, "He knocked 'em in the old Kent road," with those already given, belong to that category.

Many similar phrases are taken from the chorus of a comic song and for a time possess a peculiar life and vigor. 'Stop the cab! stop the cab!" was a familiar phrase some time ago, while know yer!" flourished mightily Whitechapel way" during the latter days of last year. All these were from the times and under any circumstances. "Have you seen the Shah?" was a favorvisit of the Shah of Persia to this country. Curiously enough, when his Persian Majesty visited these shores three years ago, the phrase was rarely, if ever, heard. "Do you see any green in my eye?" is hrase of somewhat ancient lineage, and still lives in certain circles. The very rude question, "Does your mother know you're out?" is rarely heard nowadays. It originated in a music hall song of days. It originated in a music hall song of some six or eight years ago.

Another phrase of a similar type, "Has your mother sold her mangle?" is now decently interred with other phrases whose vogue was equally short.

Footballers are not without their typical phrases, and the words, "Who killed the referee?" may frequently be heard proceeding from the "mouths of babes and sucklings" at football matches.

In the early days of the volunteer move-

In the early days of the volunteer movement, members of the auxiliary force were often subraitted to somewhat similar discourteous treatment by the street gamins of the day. "Who shot the cat?" frequently startled and infuriated the gallant civilian defenders of Britain's shores, who, filled with enthusiasm, determined to do or di-against the "French colonels" of 1857, who threatened to blow up the mouth of the Thames. The late Edmund Yates, in his ecollections, refers to the use of hrase, and speaks of the indignation felt by the volunteer when some street boy yelled from the rear, "Who shot the cat?" 'Who stole the donkey? The man with the white hat," was the common expressome years ago. Its origin is said to be found in a case heard at a London police court, where a man wearing a white hat was charged with stealing a costermonger's

In Manchester the phrase generally comes to life-a short, but merry life-on the first day of May. On that day many of the carriers and draymen are presented by their employers with white hats. In these they parade through the streets, and thereupon affect the risible muscles of the small boy.

who immediately cries out: "The man with he white hat!" The phrase, "What, again? and so soon? was very common once upon a time, and originated in a comic song; but to what can be ascribed the origin of "Twopence more, and up goes the donkey." "Who ate the cat?" is also a phrase of doubtful origin, although Mr. Farmer, in his "Slang and its Analogles," said that it was leveled at ome bargees who once ate a cat which had been placed as a decoy by a gentleman whose larder had been robbed by these laborers of the towing-path. "Who stole the eleven days?" is regarded as one of the earliest of modern street sayings. It originated in a curious way. In 1751 the proposal to alter the style of the calendar from the Julian to the Gregorian was carried out, and by act of Parliament it was decided to date the new calendar from Jan. 1 instead of March 25. Eleven days were to be dieted by causing the 14th f September to follow the 3d. Naturally, an outcry arose among the ill-educated who failed to see the advantage of the change, and who accordingly resented it. The phrase "Who stole the eleven days?" as was to be expected, at once became cur-

"Get your hair cut!" is a phrase which has only just come out and was in considerable vogue among naughty, irreverent street boys, who delighted in jeering at olk who wore long hair or beards. "Who let you out?" is another irreverent What in the present year will take the place of such phrases as "Back in a minute," He's just gone around the corner," and "Ain't he a-carrying on," familiar a short time ago to thousands of street gamins and people of an older youth, the future alone will show.

Civil-Service Tests. Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph. Whatever may be the merits of civil-service reform as a temporary physic for partisanship, its effects as a regular diet would certainly be pernicious. The only proper test of merit is practical capacity as shown by results. It is not what a man knows, but what he can do that determines his usefulness. A boy just out of school might stand a better chance of passing an examination when he is really of small account than he would some years later when he would have a heap more sense and ability. In any private business concern no system which would set aside the personal judgment and discretion of a responsible chief in selecting his subordinates would be tolerated or even thought of. Even in the matter of education the fact is becoming more and more clearly recognized that examinations afford a very poor and deceptive test of ability and the tendency is to lessen their prominence and so far as possible to substitute the judgment of the teacher. If the attempt to fasten this discredited system upon the government service shall sucreed the effects will be immeasurably pernicious. The stiff, stupid bureauracracy that would be established would be far more injurious to the public welfare than the spoils system. The civil service would gain in decorum, but deteriorate immensely in real efficiency.

Mrs. Cleveland Was Embarrassed Washington Letter. The President had a fine champagne bath

the day of the launching of the St. Louis at Cramp's ship yard in Philadelphia. The newspapers represent that Mrs. Cleveland was perfectly self-possessed and easy during the christening process, and her "volce rang out," her "cheeks were brightly flushed," and so on. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Cleveland was attacked with a spasm of stage fright which completely unnerved her at the moment of breaking the bottle of champagne. She stepped up, looking as smiling as possible, and took the gayly decorated bottle with a queenly air. But she instantly lost every vestige of queenli-ness, and looked like a backy scared young woman. Her face paled, and she gave the bottle a wild swing that was meant for the ship's nose, but came dangerously near the President's nose. The ship was beginning to move on the ways when with a mighty fort she gave another and wilder swing. but managed to smash the bottle over the ship's bows. The President escaped having his head knocked off, but a shower bath of champagne was bestowed upon both him and Mr. Cramp, between whom Mrs. Cleveand stood. As soon as the thing was over, Mrs. Cleveland recovered her lost self-possession, and probably, like other people, longed for a chance to retrieve herself.
